NDA Process

MyICP for Infineon’s OPTIREG™ power supply solutions

restricted

The NDA Process

What is an NDA?

- And NDA or non-disclosure agreement is a contract you sign with Infineon to officially accept the confidentiality of information made available to you. It includes:
  - The names of the parties to the agreement
  - The time period of the agreement
  - What constitutes confidential information
  - Appropriate uses of the information to be revealed
  - Other provisions

When do I need an NDA?

- An NDA is required for getting access to the following documentations:
  - OPTIREG™ power supply safety documentation
  - OPTIREG™ PMIC confidential documentation
  - OPTIREG™ SBC confidential documentation

Copyright © Infineon Technologies AG 2022. All rights reserved.

Step 4: How can I sign an NDA if I do not have one?

- If your company does not have a NDA with Infineon and you are interested in signing it with us, please contact your local Infineon sales office with the following information in your email:
  - Exact company name (incl. legal form) and
  - Contact person (full name)
  - Contact email address
  - Contact phone number
  - Company address (with postal code)

- If your company is a Chinese company, please additionally include the following information:
  - Company name (In English)
  - Company name (In Chinese)
  - Company Reg. No
  - Company address (with postal code)
  - Company profile

Once we receive the email with complete details regarding your company, we will forward your request to our legal team and get back to you as soon when the process is finished.

Copyright © Infineon Technologies AG 2022. All rights reserved.

Part of your life. Part of tomorrow.