

Andreas Urschitz has been Division President Power & Sensor Systems at Infineon Technologies AG since 2012. He is responsible for global Research & Development (R&D), Distribution and Marketing of power semiconductors (energy saving chips, sensors, high-frequency chips and microcontrollers).

Andreas Urschitz was born on February 20, 1972, in Klagenfurt, Austria. He obtained his master's degree in commercial science at the Vienna University of Economics and Business. He has been with Infineon (Siemens AG until 1999) since 1995.

Positions within the company

- since 2012 Division President Power & Sensor Systems
- 1998 – Several different management roles in the areas of production, marketing, development and sales
- 2011
- 1995 Production planning and strategy

Start of career at Infineon in Villach (until 1999 Siemens AG)

Further positions

- 1988 – Part-Time Farmer
- 1999