Working Student: Communication and Change in Data Management (f/m/div)

Job description

Would you like to get exciting insights in how to create business value from data by taking a step into actual practice? As a working student, you will be an integral part of the Data Governance Office and strengthen our team with your skills, dedication, and passion for data and communication. You will support the global deployment of the Data Governance Framework by making data findable, explainable, and reusable while having regular contact with business and technical stakeholders. Are you interested in building up and sharing your data management as well as your communication skills? Then don't hesitate to apply! Our team in Munich is looking forward to receiving your application!

- Data is everything: You make data findable, explainable and reusable
- Reliable work: You contribute to the deployment of the Data Governance framework in selected data domains
- Teamwork is dreamwork: You foster the data management community (e.g., via online & hybrid meetings)
- Be creative: You create content, e.g., maintain intranet pages, prepare and conduct info & exchange sessions, write blogposts
- Shape the future: You create and review training material and videos as well as organize and conduct trainings
- Lifelong learning: You support and document value-add use cases

Profile

- Study field: You are currently studying economics or a technical field with a focus on communication
- Way of working: You are data savvy, and you are convinced that data is a differentiator
- Personality: You are strong in communication with stakeholders and a team player
- Skills: You bring profound Microsoft 365 knowledge (mainly Outlook, Excel, PowerPoint, and SharePoint)
- Experience: You have a track record in writing engaging texts, e.g. for newsletters and blogposts as well as you bring experience in video scripting and editing
- Availability: You are interested in spending minimum 12 months in this role
- Language skills: You have excellent English skills, both written and spoken, German would be a plus
