

Jochen Hanebeck is designated CEO of Infineon Technologies AG. He has been a member of the Management Board and Chief Operations Officer since 2016.

Jochen Hanebeck was born in 1968 in Dortmund. He received a degree in electrical engineering from RWTH Aachen University.

He has been with Infineon since 1994 (Siemens AG until 1999).

Positions within the company

Since 2016    Member of the Management Board and Chief Operations Officer, responsible for Operations, including Manufacturing, Logistics, Quality, Customs and Procurement

Other positions

2008            Division President Automotive

2007            Head of the Microcontrollers Business Unit within the Automotive, Industrial and Multimarket Group

2004            Head of Operations within the Automotive, Industrial and Multimarket Group

2003            Head of the Infineon Center of Excellence

2001            Head of Operations within the Chip Card & Security Division

1999            Assistant to the Chief Operating Officer

1997            Head of DRAM Technology Development at Siemens Microelectronics Center (SIMEC) in Dresden

1994            Development Engineer in DRAM development (Siemens in a joint venture with IBM and Toshiba) in East Fishkill, USA

Membership of Supervisory Boards and governing bodies of domestic and foreign companies

Member of the Supervisory Board

- Infineon Technologies Austria AG, Villach, Austria (group mandate, not listed)